Potato Seeds

Here are the varieties of potato seeds we carry from Irish Eyes Garden Seeds.

Kennebec Mini Tuber Organic

This short oval potato with smooth pale yellow skin, shallow eyes, and white flesh can be used for fries, hash browns and many other uses, even without peeling. Kennebec, one of the best keepers, is resistant to blight, mosaic, late blight and net necrosis. The heavy yields of dependently large potatoes, on most soils, make this a great potato in the North. Plant sunburns easily.

Rose Finn Apple Organic

One of the best tasting of the fingerlings. It has rosy-buff skin with deep yellow flesh (blushed with red). Excellent for potato salad. Produces lots of medium sized, well clustered potatoes. Very good roasted over coals. The tubers are long keeping and the vines are very vigorous. Be careful not to overcrowd this variety.

Red Pontiac Mini Tuber Organic

#1 red potato every year! This large round potato has thin, dark red skins, deep eyes and crisp white flesh. Excellent for mashed potatoes and boiling, but not baking. Heat-tolerant, long-storing and high-yielding. It will also grow in heavy soil and well suited for growing in wire cages. One precaution about this variety: the skin is so thin it should be allowed to cure and firm up for a week or two in the ground after the vines die back.

Yukon Gold Heirloom Organic

This round tuber has smooth, thin yellow skin with pink coloring around shallow eyes and yellow flesh. It provides excellent flavor when baked, boiled or made into salads or fries; too moist for hash browns. The next selling early variety is a moderate keeper, and is drought tolerant.

French Fingerling Organic

This fingerling is gourmet quality with smooth skin and yellow flesh. There is usually a little red/pink ring just under the skin. It produces medium to large tubers.

Russet Burbank Organic

Russet skin, shallow eyes, and white flesh are characteristic of this long oval russet. Great taste- baked, fried or boiled. Long storing, scab-resistant potato needs a consistent moisture supply. Most widely grown potato in U.S. originating from Luther Burbank's early plant breeding. This is the potato that made Idaho famous.

Russian Banana Mini Tuber Organic

This fingerling, developed in the Baltic region of northeastern Europe, is a great salad potato. The skin and flesh are both yellow- with firm texture. You will receive heavy yields of medium-sized, all purpose tubers. Excellent resistance to disease.

Butterfinger Mini Tuber Organic

Crescent shaped with lightly russeted thin skin and nutty tasting yellow flesh. Very firm when cooked. The pieces of potato hold their shape in potato salads.

Caribe Organic Tuber

A large, uniform tuber, with snow white flesh and lavender skin, is good boiled, steamed, or mashed. It should be eaten first as it is not a good keeper. Resistant to heat and drought, scab and storage rot. Producing excellent yields, it can be grown almost anywhere. Ideal for the home garden.

La Ratte Organic

French Potato, the culinary superstars of European haute cuisine. Mildly nutty, reminiscent of chestnuts, hazelnuts, and almonds with a subtle sweetness!

Purple Majesty Organic

Oblong, mid season potato with smooth dark purple skin. Almost solid purple inside unlike All Blue. Very good table quality. Makes a great blue potato salad.

Carola Organic

The smooth skin and classic waxy type of flesh are both deep yellow. This medium-sized potato has rich flavor and eating quality, resembling many fingerlings. Good baked or steamed and keeps well. This variety survives drought well and is scab- and blight-resistant. Originally from Germany, Carola is a good producer.

German Butterball Organic

Its smooth, thick, golden, and netted skin and butter yellow flesh are characteristics of this small to medium oblong tuber with outstanding taste. Great for hash browns, fries, steaming or baking, and it stores well. Excellent flavor.

Cherry Red Organic

Small to medium-sized tubers, bright medium to dark-red skin and attractive white flesh. This one is always a good producer and a heavy setter with a "nest" of potatoes, tightly clustered in one place.
